

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

- > Write a Letter
- > Read Letters
- > Send a Comment

Cleveland

magazine.com

home | subscribe | advertise | newsstan

Google™

this month	dining & spirits	arts & entertainment	travel & leisure	home & real estate	health & wellness	rat su
----------------------------	--------------------------------------	--	--------------------------------------	--	---------------------------------------	------------------------

All photos (unless otherwise noted) for clevelandmagazine.com's party pics are taken by Thom Sheridan, Sheridan Photography, Cleveland OH, (216) 382-1068

Select from the options below to restrict your search.

search for search using or search by

Tricia Luxenburg

Click to see the full image

More than 300 guests came out for "In the Name Of," a benefit for the Tricia Luxenburg Memorial Scholarship at Executive Landerhaven. The organization was created for Tricia Luxenburg, who at the age of 32 lost her battle with breast cancer last was a teacher at Noble Elementary School in Cleveland Heights.

The night began with a cocktail hour and a silent auction before a dinner of pecan-crusted chicken and fresh vegetables w Along with a 50/50 raffle, keys to a treasure chest were sold. The chest contained a flatscreen TV.

After dinner, guests participated in a live auction with prizes such as a $6,000 wristwatch that was donated by Picciones' i Village. Other live auction prizes included trips to Hilton Head, Broadway and Canyon Ranch.

The Cleveland BoyChoir and the local dance band Run Avril Run performed throughout the night.

All proceeds went toward scholarships for two students who are pursuing their teaching degrees.

See more photo galleries

© Cleveland Magazine 2007 | P: (216) 771-2833 | F: (216) 781-6318 | 1422 Euclid Ave. Suite 730 Clev